Airships in England
No Safety in Holes
A Professional Army
If the Smash Comes

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

England still concentrates on defense and attack in the air. A committee of important Englishmen, members of the House of Lords and the House of Commons led by Mr. Churchill, arranged a solemn call on Prime Minister Baldwin to demand more and better planes, and faster building.

Mr. Duff Cooper, British war secretary, announces that the anti-aircraft organization arranged to protect the City of London numbers more than 10,000 men—for that one city. At the same time the British Royal air force, like the air force of France, admits that no possible anti-aircraft preparation could protect a city against enemy bombardment, even if it were known exactly when the enemy airships would appear.

Experiments have proved that: About the only adequate defense is for a nation to be able to say, "Destroy ONE of my cities, and I shall destroy ALL of yours," or "I shall kill you, if you try to kill me."

Spain's civil war would be infinitely worse if that country were well equipped with fighting planes. Military men were amazed to read reports that a plane owned by the Spanish insurgents had destroyed a Spanish government submarine in the straits of Gibraltar. You would think that if anything could be safe from air attack it would be the submarine.

A little French girl with blue ribbons in her hair telling in a Paris music hall how wicked soldiers pursued her when she was carrying a basket of eggs, making it necessary for her to climb a fence, sings, "I Lost My Two Dozen Eggs, But I Kept My Innocence."

This country may lose other things, but it intends to "preserve" its gold. The Chicago Great Lakes Construction Company, for $468,274, builds at Fort Knox, Ky., a "bullion depository" dug down in the earth, with "impregnable vaults" in which to hide Uncle Sam's supplies of gold and silver.

"Impregnable," like "impossible," does not exist in real life. The right collection of airplanes visiting this country, supplying necessary arguments, would take the President, secretary of the treasury and others, by plane to Fort Knox. The invaders would say: "Open up," and the officials would "OPEN UP."

Submarines below water, planes in the air, not holes in the ground would let Uncle Sam keep his gold safe. Washington should never forget Solon's remark to King Croesus: "If any one comes having better iron than you, he will be master of all this gold."

Mr. Stanton B. Leeds, writing for Universal Service, reports France is planning "a professional army," a permanent organization of at least 100,000 men, who will make fighting in the army a career, as others make a career in commerce, law, diplomacy. A French military authority asks:

"If we had an army made up of experts, thoroughly trained, and completely mechanized do you think the Germans would have dared to reoccupy the Rhineland?"

The well informed in Europe declare unanimously: "Wars of the future will be dominated from the air," and for air war, 100,000 men would be a gigantic army, since the whole floating navy of England includes only 60,000 men. A professional army, with men making a career as fighters and killers, would be nothing new.

The most noted equestrian statue in the world shows you Colleoni sitting on his bronze horse as he rode into battle 400 years ago, fighting for Venice against Florence, and again for Florence against Venice.

The Samurai of Japan were "two-sword men" whose business and career was fighting.

The world of the future may be ruled by fighting men that will be shown in their monuments not on bronze horses, but in the cockpit of a bronze fighting plane, forever grounded.

First the United States entered into an agreement with foreign powers, England included, concerning the building of battleships which OUGHT to be our business exclusively; all questions concerning it decided exclusively by the United States. Then this country "warned" Great Britain to keep within the agreed building limits. Under the agreement, this country is "forbidden" to continue building 10,000-ton cruisers. But we warn Britain that if she creates more than seventy new cruisers within a certain number of years, this country will resume active building.

Mob Rule Destroys A Free Press and A Free Country

In a signed statement from Rome, Italy, to the Associated Press relative to the suspension of publication of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Mr. William Randolph Hearst today said:

IT has cost me over a million dollars to conduct my paper in Seattle all through the depression and up to date.

If the Communists want to relieve me of that cost and of the duty of supplying jobs to labor, it is not an unmixed evil. I would save money.

However, there is a greater issue at stake than saving money.

There is the issue of a free press and a free country.

No press is free that is subject to mob rule.

NO COUNTRY is free where the public officials are too cowardly or too corrupt to protect the fundamental rights of loyal and law-abiding citizens.

No country is even independent which allows citizens of alien lands and advocates of alien doctrines, like Mr. Bridges—a British subject, unnaturalized here and unwilling to be naturalized—to defy its laws and its Constitution and ride roughshod over its liberties.

No country remains free, or deserves to be free, which has not the spirit to protect its freedom—to guard its own liberties—not the liberties of somebody else, but its own.

THE trouble with our careless people is that they are like the Western gambler who said that he did not care what happened as long as it did not happen to him.

They forget that what happened to their fellow citizens will eventually happen to them.

Protecting the liberties of all citizens in a free country is not altruism; it is enlightened self-interest.

The time to stop the mob rule of Communism is before it gains control of state and nation; not afterward, like poor, prostrate Spain.

But whether anybody else makes the fight against Communism and mob rule or not, I am going to make it; and I am enlisted for the duration of the war.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

SEATTLE, Aug. 21—The Seattle Times, for many years a strong competitor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, published the following editorial, signed by the owner and publisher, C. B. Blethen, on the front page Wednesday, August 19, under the headline:

Constitution of State and Nation Suspended in Seattle

ONCE upon a time we wrote a Declaration of Independence. Not so long after that we wrote a Constitution for the United States of America.

When I say "we" I am talking about the people who founded these free United States—the country we so proudly call America.

They did a pretty good job of it. Practically speaking, it was only questioned once, and then merely over the question of slavery—not over the right of a citizen to be protected in his home and in his business—and in his right to discuss his problems—his right to free speech.

The slavery issue brought on a war and at the end of it the Constitution was sustained.

This war was fought a long time back—but the

YOUTH KILLED, 2 GIRLS DYING IN AUTO CRASH

AUTO IN FOG SKIDS, THEN HITS TREE

Norton, Aug. 21—Rounding a curve in Main street at 4 a. m. today, an automobile ran into blinding fog, skidded off the road into a tree, killed one youth, critically injured two girls and injured two other youths less seriously.

Killed instantly was Elzear Dionne, 22, of Hartford avenue, North Uxbridge, whose skull was fractured.

Dying are Martha Kendzierska, 22, and her sister, Lucy, 20, of West street, Woonsocket, R. I.

Elphege J. Guertin, 22, of Pond street, North Uxbridge, driver of the car, and Henry C. Guyan, 18, of Maple street, East Douglas, suffered minor hurts.

The three youths were strikers from the textile mills at East Douglas. Survivors of the crash are at

Guard Rescues 2 Little Girls on Hyannis Beach

Hyannis, Aug. 21—Two Charlestown children were saved from drowning here today by a life guard who had just returned to duty after undergoing an operation for appendicitis.

The rescuer was Charles A. Spohr, an officer at the Virginia Military Institute.

After a struggle which taxed his strength to the utmost, he carried Virginia Kingsbury, nine and Joan Beal, 11, both of Pearl street, Charlestown, to safety.

The children had been thrown into the water, 200 yards off shore, when a rowboat in which they were riding overturned.

Spohr saw the accident from the beach. He swam to the aid of the little girls and succeeded in bringing both of them to shallow water where bathers were able to wade out and relieve him of his double burden.

Spohr was released from the Cape Cod Hospital only on July 31, after his appendix had been removed.

He has a long record as a life saver and is the possessor of a United States volunteer life saving plaque, awarded him for a double rescue in 1934.

Mighty proud is John Coppa of Providence as he holds in his arms a brand new set of triplets born to his wife, Mrs. John Coppa. The little ladies, in the usual order, are Anna, 4½ pounds; Laura, 6 pounds, and Mary, 7 pounds. The infants seem to be a little perturbed by the cameraman's gaze, but otherwise they are normal and stand more than even chance of living.

LOVE FINDS A WAY

Waltham Girl Has a Time Marrying

New York, Aug. 21 (AP)—Well, sir, related Capt. Theodor Koch of the liner Hamburg as it was warped into its pier today, the gentleman from Linton, Ind., and the lady from Waltham, Mass., certainly had a time of it trying to get married.

The ship was only a few days out of New York on its last Europe-bound voyage when Jeremy Rawsen, 38, from Indiana, an engineer for an oil company, said he wanted to marry Irma Harrington, 31, of New England.

"Can't do it," explained the captain reluctantly, "the law says I can perform the ceremony only for German citizens."

He turned to the prospective bride. Was she really in love, asked Capt. Koch in the wisdom of his years, or just infatuated?

In love, really, she replied. So Capt. Koch radioed Cobh, his first port, asking the American consul to come aboard and read the vows. No, said the consul.

The consul at Cherbourg declined, too.

But with the consent of the captain, the Rev. Henry C. Offerman, a New York minister and a passenger, performed the ceremony in Cherbourg harbor at exactly 6:45 a. m. on the morning of August 13.

Rawsen disembarked there with a party of other engineers to proceed to Persia. The new bride sailed for Southampton to take a ship back home. She said she would spend six months here and then leave to join her husband in Persia.

3 Firemen Felled in $50,000 Blaze

Portland, Me., Aug. 21 (AP)—Three firemen, overcome by smoke, were taken to a hospital today while their mates fought a stubborn blaze in the Libby Building in the center of the business district here.

Several other firemen required resuscitation on the scene as heavy smoke hampered efforts of Portland and South Portland fire fighters.

Several hours after the first alarm was sounded, the blaze still raged inside the building, causing damage unofficially estimated at $50,000.

Fire officials believed the blaze started in a restaurant or a candy store in the first floor of the four-story structure.

Lisbon, Aug. 21 (US)—Quiet prevails throughout Portugal today and rumors in America that the Spanish revolt has spread to Portugal are absolutely unfounded. Communications with the outside world by telegraph and cable are normal.

Hendaye, France, Aug. 21 (AP)—A Fascist rebel airplane dropped five bombs on Hernani village, south of San Sebastian, today, while negotiations were reported under way to restore peace in the Bay of Biscay battle area.

London, Aug. 21 (INS)—Germany's warning that "force will be met with force," and British notification today that no Spanish blockade in the Mediterranean would be tolerated were definitely brushed aside by a Spanish naval blockade of the rebel port of Cadiz.

Back and forth across the Cadiz harbor, the Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Gibraltar wired today, patrol the Cruiser Libertad, the destroyer Lepanto and a submarine, covering the "beat" from Cape Roche to Point Camaron so that no foreign ship suspected of carrying contraband can enter.

LANDON URGES VOTERS TO WEIGH VITAL ISSUES

GOVERNOR FEARS NEW DEAL MORTGAGES U. S. FREEDOM

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 21 (INS — Pleading for a dispassionate decision on the issues of the campaign, Governor Alfred M. Landon today appealed to the American people to take a real interest in their local, state and federal governments in order to be well governed.

Before 2500 Republican leaders from Nebraska and Iowa at a breakfast conference he said:

It is mighty good of you people of Omaha and surrounding territory of Nebraska to come here this mornig to wish me well on my journey to my birthplace in Pennsylvania. I am going back there, to the little town in which I was born, to open the campaign for the great office for which I have been nominated.

I deeply appreciate the neighborly receptions I received yesterday throughout my journey across your state and our neighboring State of Colorado. The most encouraging thing, however, to me, is the evidence which today's welcome demonstrates, of the deep interest the people feel in the vital business of just government.

As American citizens, we are responsible for the kind of government we have in our community, our state and at Washington.

We cannot escape being governed. We have the choice of governing ourselves or of being governed. Under the American system, the people are the government when they take a lively interest in the selection of those who represent them in the state and in the nation.

We can be certain that we shall be well governed when the people take such an interest. If we do not believe this to be true, then we abandon our faith in American institutions. When we neglect our responsibilities as citizens and leave the business of government to others, we cannot be sure that we shall be well governed; nor can we complain about the government we get. Ours is the blame if it turns out to be bad.

If the elections this year, for President and for Congress, are to be truly representative of the interest of the American people in just government they will be decided by the common sense of the everyday American. There are a great many of us—Republicans, Democrats and Independents—who know certain things need to be done. Some of these things must be done by ourselves as individuals. Others must be done by those who represent us in the government.

We want government to do its full share in protecting us and helping us to meet our necessities. But we do not want government to jeopardize our birthright of freedom or mortgage that equality of opportunity towards which we are striving.

I have said that every national campaign is a campaign of education. I hope and believe that the one upon which we are now entering will be no exception.

Vital issues are at stake—issues that concern every American home. That is why their discussion should arouse the deepest interest in cities and town, at the crossroads and on the farms. As the American people inform themselves and make up their own minds the election will be decided. All of us will cheerfully accept the verdict of the great jury of the people.

Thank you again for coming out in such numbers to wish me God speed, and may we all be given the strength to discuss and weigh the issues of this campaign dispassionately, to make our decisions, each according to the dictates of conscience as to what is best for the America of our allegiance.

Landon Gets Big Welcome as Train Speeds Eastward

Aboard Landon Special, Enroute To Chicago, Aug. 20 (INS)—Governor Alfred M. Landon received a tumultuous welcome all through Colorado and Nebraska, as he sped eastward from a brief vacation in the Colorado rockies.

After a breakfast conference in Omaha, Neb., with Republican leaders he departed for his train.

He also will deliver major addresses at Chautauqua, N. Y., Monday night and at Buffalo next Wednesday night.

RITCHIE TO AID

William Ritchie, prominent Omaha lawyer, life-long Democrat, onetime candidate for lieutenant-governor of Nebraska and a cousin of the late Maryland Governor, speaking for the group, said:

"I am going to support Governor Landon with everything at my command. I believe in him because he stands for sound and fundamental principles and is socially minded. He will bring about those reforms which the people want without destroying American institutions."

On his swing East, Landon sounded two political chords that brought hearty endorsement from crowds in a score of cities and towns. He declared a "man can be a liberal without being a spendthrift," and attacked "must legislation" as contrary to the American theory of constitutional government.

LANDON IS SENT ROOSEVELT'S PARLEY BID

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 21 (AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon said today he would accept President Roosevelt's invitation to a drouth conference at Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 1.

Hyde Park, Aug. 21 (INS)—President Roosevelt today formally invited his Republican opponent, Governor Alfred M. Landon, of Kansas, and a number of other State executives to join him in a discussion of drouth relief problems.

A telegram went forward to Landon from the summer White House as follows:

"As you probably know, I am coming west next week to get at first hand all the information I can with respect to the situation in the drouth area. We plan to arrive in Des Moines early morning, Tuesday, September 1, and I would appreciate much if you could find it convenient to meet us there for a general discussion of the situation. To this conference I am also inviting Governors Herring of Iowa, Cochran of Nebraska, Park of Missouri, and Marland of Oklahoma.

"I am asking Governor Herring, as our host, to advise you as to the detailed plans for the conference.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt"

Similarly worded telegrams went forward to the governors of every state in the wide area affected by the drouth asking them to conferences in their respective regions.

At the same time, the summer White House made public the official itinerary of the drouth trip. It follows:

The President will leave Washington around midnight August 25, heading direct to Bismarck, N. D., where on the evening of August 27 he will confer with Acting Governor Welford of North Dakota, Acting Governor Holt of Montana and the Senators from those two states.

New York, Aug. 21 (US)—Republican women leaders in the east will join Governor Landon on his speaking tour in western New York next Monday.

Among those who will meet the Republican candidate are Miss Natalie Couch, head of the women's division of the Republican National Committee in the east; Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, national committeewoman, and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, vice chairman of the Republican state committtee.

They will join the Landon party at Erie, Pa., going from there to Chautauqua and Buffalo.

A meeting of women leaders has been called in Buffalo for next Wednesday by Mrs. Bacon. If his engagements permit, Governor Landon, who speaks that night in Buffalo, will meet with the women leaders.

Mob Rule Destroys Free Press

Constitution was written and accepted an equally long time before that. But even this war did not question the right of a citizen to protection in his home—to do business under the law.

THERE were some grand names signed to those two old documents, to the Declaration—to the Constitution.

No President of the United States has ever dared to suspend the rights and liberties guaranteed under the Constitution. No Governor of a State—up to now—has ever had the temerity to tamper with the rights of citizens of any Commonwealth which, upon its inception, has written a State Constitution based on the original great document.

But—the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Washington have been suspended in the City of Seattle.

I spoke of some wonderful names that were signed to that grand old document. Let's look at them. Here's a man named Washington and another named Alexander Hamilton. Just below, Benjamin Franklin, Gouverneur Morris and James Madison. No use reciting the rest.

And then—in any formal copy of the Constitution of the United States—just below these signatures we find:

AMENDMENT I.

Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press . . .

WELL—times have changed indeed. The Post-Intelligencer, Seattle's oldest newspaper, was "abridged" last Thursday. Its publication was stopped.

In so far as Seattle is concerned, the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Washington were suspended by one Dave Beck, head of the Teamsters' Union, and one John Dore, Mayor of the City of Seattle.

Acquiescing in their action was—and is—one Clarence D. Martin, Governor of the State of Washington. Aided and abetted, of course, by various and sundry labor leaders of city and State.

The merits of the controversy that is alleged to be the reason for forcing the suspension of a great newspaper are of no consequence whatsoever. The Government has set up a method of dealing with any situation of this kind that might arise.

AMONG the rights guaranteed to each individual by the Constitution are:

Protection against being deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law;

Protection from abridgment by the States of the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States;

Protection from domestic violence and foreign invasion.

Only two questions are involved — and here they are:

Is the Constitution of the State of Washington valid?

Is the Constitution of the United States in effect?

To date the vote is as follows:

Washington, Franklin, Morris, Madison, et al . . . AYE!

Beck, Dore, Martin, et al . . . NO!

And so far as Seattle is concerned, the "NOES" have it!

C. B. BLETHEN.

Roosevelt to Hold Strategy Session

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug 21 (INS)—While Governor Alfred M. Landon was swinging east on his initial speaking tour, President Roosevelt today speeded up plans of his own for meeting the Republican campaign threat.

Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley and other party leaders were to have dinner at Hyde Park tonight and spend the evening discussing strategy.

It was understood an itinerary carrying the President across country and into all of the Pacific Coast states was to be taken up. Tentatively, this trip will be made late in September or early in October.

Democratic leaders expected Mr. Roosevelt to make approximately six major speeches over a nation-wide broadcast between now and election day.

Former Governor John G. Winant, of New Hampshire, now head of the Social Security Board, and Representative Moran, (D) of Maine, were to see the President today.

SEWELL LASHES CLAIMS MADE BY BRANN

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
(Nationally Known Political Writer)

Augusta, Me., Aug. 21—Governor Louis J. Brann has violently misrepresented the condition of the important newsprint and paper industry of Maine, according to charges made in a public statement by Chairman Arthur E. Sewall of the Republican State Committee.

Chairman Sewall, in his statement, said:

1—That the National Recovery Act, "unfortunate brain-child of the New Deal experimenters," added $4.50 per ton to the cost of paper manufacture and placed the American manufacturers at a serious disadvantage in competition with foreign manufacturers.

2—That Secretary of State Hull, "a low tariff enthusiast," placed newsprint on the free list for five years and again gave the foreign competitors of American business an advantage.

3—That Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said newsprint and paper were an inefficient and dying industry and should be abandoned to its fate.

4—That the New Deal denied the requests of the industry to limit the importation of foreign newsprint.

The real barriers to encouragement of the great industry have been thrown in its path by "senseless experiments" of the New Deal, Chairman Sewall charged. In consequence, the investors in the industry have suffered and thousands of workers have been denied the opportunity for compensatory employment, Chairman Sewall said.

"These are the actual facts," Chairman Sewall said, "and the Governor knew it when he was not a candidate for election."

Sewall said that Brann's reputation for "amiability" will not deter the Republicans from stating the actual facts in this campaign, he concluded.

"The New Deal government has established, at the expense of the taxpayers, the most widespread propaganda machine in the history of the country.

"Governor Brann will find, however, that the people of Maine are thoughtful.

"They do not forget the facts quickly, nor will they allow themselves to be confused by the theatricals of the three-ring circus that is known as the New Deal."

Chairman Sewall thus unloosed the most spirited attack yet made upon the New Deal candidate for Senator and gave evidence of the confidence which the Republicans hold in the September election.

In the same statement, Chairman Sewall alluded to the campaign speech made at Portland by Governor McNutt of Indiana, a former commander of the American Legion.

He said that if McNutt has been utterly frank, he would have described President Roosevelt not only vetoed the soldiers' bonus but how he went to the Capitol in a blaze of theatricals to signalize his hostility to the requests of the war veterans for prompt payment of the debt pledged them by their country.

He said that Roosevelt also turned his address on "The state of the nation" into a theatrical carnival and, under the glare of the Klieg lamps on the hall of representatives, he publicly berated all his fellow-citizens who dared to disagree with his policies.

The visit of McNutt has aroused a new tempest in the Maine campaign. He obviously was sent here in an effort to win the favor of the war veterans for the New Deal. His visit, however, has not only called attention again to the acrimonious veto of the pay-now bill by the President, but has caused the publication of a hearty endorsement of Senator Wallace H. White's record by the National legislative headquarters of the American Legion at Washington.

The endorsement of Senator White was made by Chairman John H. Taylor of the Legion's legislative committee, who said that throughout Senator White's conspicuous service in the halls of Congress he has been eminently fair and considerate in his treatment of all matters affecting the welfare of the veterans.

Senator White did not vote for the Patman bill, because of its inflationary character, but once the pay-now bill was whipped into shape and received the approval of the veterans' organizations, he gave it his cordial support, regardless of the opposition of President Roosevelt.

Two Towns Vie at Art Balls

"Skin's the Limit" Rule But Halls Are Dressed

CENSOR Is Out on GARB

PROVINCETOWN VS. ROCKPORT

Provincetown, Aug. 21—Artists, intellectuals, Bohemians, fisherfolk and ordinary townspeople will lock arms and converge upon historic Town Hall tonight to have their fill of revelry at the artists' 21st annual costume ball.

It is estimated by members of the Provincetown Art Association that an attendance of more than 1000 merrymakers, including painters and writers of national fame, will pack Town Hall to witness the jamboree.

One matter that has been impressed upon the artists is to the effect that censoring will not play an important part in the night's affair.

The local members of the brush and canvas profession are out to "outstrip" their brother and sister artists over in Rockport.

Hall Is Dressed

With that objective at stake, Adam and Eve ought to be the most popular couple at the ball. The directors of the affair, however, have issued only one statement pertaining to dress and that is, "let your conscience be your guide."

And that's saying a whole lot, for the artists have been putting on some mighty gay affairs during the past 20 years, some of which have resulted in the appearance of the local constabulary.

The Town Hall has been decorated in gay colors and lights with bunting covering the ceiling and walls.

All in all, this quaint old New England town has taken on the aspect of a Mardi Gras for the next 24 hours.

After the ball is over the artists will head for private parties where they will celebrate until their consciences again guide them.

Police to Eye Rockport Ball

Rockport, Aug. 21—It's in Town Hall tonight!

Rockport's summer colony will gather to celebrate the biggest event on the social calendar—the Rockport Artists' Ball.

Tonight's affair will be more giddy and gaudy than ever before with the Rockport Art Association's announcement that the girls' and boys' costumes will be uncensored and they will not be embarrassed because of lack of them.

What will be seen strutting around the staid Town Hall floor tonight would make Sally Rand, of fan dance fame and Gypsy Rose Lee, queen of burlesque, look like a pair of well-dressed young ladies.

The Rockporters have announced intentions of outstripping the Provincetowners and, from early reports today, the locals have a good chance of retaining the title.

Of course, the police will be on hand to maintain law and order and uphold the dignity of the Town of Rockport.

At least 200 artists from all sections of the North Shore will turn out for the occasion along with 1500 townspeople. The latter will be in their usual role of spectators commenting on the dancers—the same as they have done during the past 15 years.

The high ceiling of Town Hall will be decorated with balloons, streamers, cardboard comets while stratospheric effects float in the air.

Along towards midnight, after the grand march, a jury of artists will choose the girl wearing the most beautiful costume—if any.

Bits of gossip heard today reveal some of the costumes that will be worn.

Miss Carolyn Montrose, of Greenwich, Conn., will appear as a daughter from the stratosphere. Miss Margaret Sleighton of New York city will be garbed in a balloon costume while Lucy Zion of Rockport will drape a fish net—and nothing more—about her body.

Rockport guardians of the law should be equipped with plenty of safety pins tonight. They may happen to meet a Raphael cherub, or two.

MISS MOLLIE KAFKA, IN STREAMLINE COSTUME

Providence Mother Bears Triplets

Providence, R. I., Aug. 21—Triplets, all normal and given every chance of living, were born here to Mrs. John Coppa, at her home, Ridge street, it was revealed today.

The triplets are to be removed today to the Rhode Island State Hospital for expert care.

The infants are Anna, 4½ pounds; Laura, 6 pounds, and Mary, 7½ pounds.

Dr. Domenica Calise made the delivery and was assisted by Mrs. Coppa's sister-in-law, Mrs. Venanzia Coppa. The father is a cafe owner. They have eight other children, ranging in age from 15 months to 17 years.

New Tiny Speed Plane for U. S.

East Hartford, Conn., Aug. 21 (INS)—Details of the newest all-metal fighting plane designed for Uncle Sam, a single-seater, low-wing monoplane armed with two 30-calibre machine guns and 300 pounds of bombs, were announced today by Chance Vought Aircraft following flight tests at Rentschler Field.

Only 33 feet 6 inches overall, the new plane is capable of 250 miles per hour and a cruising range of 1,070 miles.

Towns Join Quincy Sunday Auto Curb

Since August 1, auto dealers in Quincy have been banned from selling automobiles, oiling, greasing, or making repairs, unless in emergency, on Sundays.

Today 27 of the 31 dealers protesting that neighboring towns were allowed to sell and repair cars and that all the business was going to them, appeared in the office of Chief of Police John J. Avery.

Chief Avery told the dealers he would do his best to bring surrounding towns under the same ban. In two hours he had Braintree, Randolph and Hingham in line and was still going strong.

This "In-Out" Has Barbers Tearing Hair

There's a middle-aged man who [illegible] to the [illegible] of an ingrown [illegible] "got a bit [illegible] in the head" who has barbers in the South End and Jamaica Plain tearing out their own hair.

The gentleman, posing as an inspector for the State Board of Registration for Barbers, enters a shop, views the place with a steely stare and if he finds there are no brass cuspidors adorning the floors orders the proprietor to install six at once.

When he enters a shop that is well equipped with cuspidors he orders them removed.

For three weeks barbers have been too busy to cut hair, what with ordering cuspidors and throwing them away.

The police would like to talk to the "cuspidor inspector."

WARSHIPS HUNT MYSTERY BOAT

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 21 (AP)—Three navy destroyers, searchlights blazing, early today combed the Pacific where the "S. S. San Joaquin" had been reported sinking, with its crew taking to lifeboats.

Reaching the position 500 miles west of Guadalupe Island, reported in mysterious S O S calls Wednesday and yesterday, the speeding destroyers found no trace of the vessel.

The naval communications office here received this message from Commander Edward C. Raguet of the flagship Aylwin:

"No contact made. Scouting line 15 miles wide. Propose to proceed on course for 45 miles."

Mystery still enveloped identity of the San Joaquin, since the only craft listed in marine records by that name—a tuna clipper—is docked at San Pedro. Shipping men said the distress calls might have come from the 120-foot tuna clipper San Juan of San Diego, the name being garbled in transmission.

Mary Astor's Life:

CRASH Ends Bridal BLISS

STAR'S FIRST MARRIAGE

Heartbreak followed on the heels of happiness in the first great romance of Mary Astor's life, the fifth chapter of her life story, reveals.

By DOROTHY ROE

Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

Hollywood, Aug. 21—In her restless search for romance, beautiful Mary Astor is revealed as always at war with herself—weighing, discarding, turning again to the hunt for "something enduring, something beautiful, something that will last forever."

Those who know her best believe Mary's reckless and unsatisfied quest began after the first great sorrow of her life—the tragic ending of her romance with Kenneth Hawks, the brilliant young director, whom she married in 1928.

Up to that time the real-life Mary Astor lived pretty much in the character of her screen roles—the lovely, fragile heroine, pledged to a belief that love conquers all and that every story has a happy ending.

Pay to Parents

From earliest childhood she had allowed herself no leisure moments. She was like the "self-made man" who finds time to play only after his normal playtime is past, and has to learn the rules of the game from scratch.

Mary tells it thus:

"The first twenty-two years of my life, I was never allowed to grow up. My family wanted to keep me a little girl, and so did my directors. They gave me 'sweet and girlish' roles in pictures, and at home I was completely dominated by my mother and father.

"My salary check was always sent to my parents. When I was eighteen and making a salary of about $1000 a week, I was still given only a $5 weekly allowance."

Since then Mary has seen more of life, has packed a great deal of beauty and tragedy, adventure and disappointment, into a few short years. And since then she has written:

"Oh, dear—everything in my life seems to go off half cocked! Maybe I expect too much."

But in those days, when she was 22, she didn't stop to make philosophical observations, or to question the lasting beauty of a moment's happiness.

It was at this time that she met the serious, brilliant young Hawks and fell head over heels in love with him.

They met around Christmas, 1926, when Mary was making the picture "Sea Hawk," and were engaged 13 months before their marriage, early in 1928.

Shaken by the scandals and bitterness of her recent court fight for custody of her little daughter, Mary Astor speaks wistfully of her brief time of happiness with Kenneth Hawks:

"Kenneth was probably the best friend I ever had. He was brilliant, cultured, charming—a Yale man with a splendid family background.

"My family didn't want me to marry him. They didn't want me to marry anybody. We put it off for thirteen months, and then we finally did it.

Her First Bliss

"We had a lovely wedding ceremony in my parents' home, with a veil and orange blossoms and all the trimmings.

"We went to New York and Havana on our honeymoon and came back to a little house of our own in the hills.

In those days the closest friends of Mary Astor and Kenneth Hawks were Mr. and Mrs. Fredric March, Marian Spitzer and her husband, Harlan Thompson, Inez Courtney, Kay Johnson and John Cromwell, and other luminaries of the film colony.

Shortly after her marriage, Mary ran into professional troubles with the arrival of the talkies. She had been under contract at $3,750 a week for silent pictures, but when the talkies came in she lost out for a while.

Mrs. March, who was known to the stage as Florence Eldridge, got Mary a part in a stage play, "Among the Married," with Edward Everett Horton, late in 1929.

It was a smash hit, and a week after its Los Angeles opening Mary was flooded with new film offers from the same producers who had refused her contracts a few months before.

It was during the run of this play that the sudden, tragic death of her husband brought all Mary's new-found happiness crashing about her head. She says:

"It was between the matinee and night performance, on January 2, 1930. I was lying on a couch on the set, waiting for Kenneth to come and take me to dinner, along with Florence and Freddie March, and some others.

"Florence (Mrs. March) had to come and tell me. I couldn't believe it at first. She told me Kenneth had been killed in a plane crash, along with ten or twelve others. I kept saying—'It sounds like you're telling me Kenneth is dead. He can't be dead!'"

Doris Lloyd took her part in "Among the Married" that night, and for many months lovely Mary Astor, who later was to be described as the "Orchid Woman" of the screen and the "thrill seeker" of Hollywood's most sensational court drama, was in a state of complete nervous collapse.

Five years later, during the height of her marital troubles with Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, Mary wrote to her famous diary:

"Kenneth—dead five years now—a sense of loss as always when I think of him. I didn't appreciate him—I was too young."

This was the period when Mary's staunch courage reached its lowest ebb, and the period when an old friend came to the rescue—Lee Tracy.

(Tomorrow's installment tells of Mary's first meeting with Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, and a case of "love at first sight.")

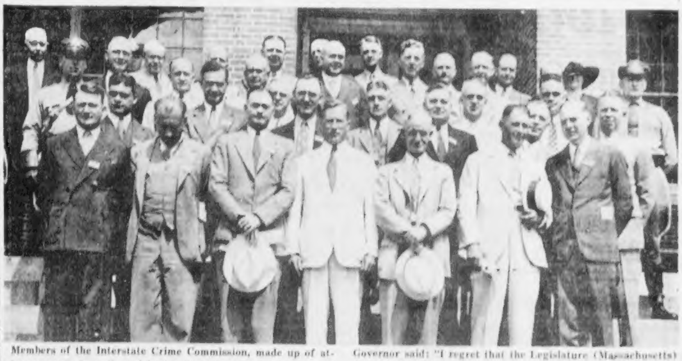
Members of Interstate Crime Commission at State House



Members of the Interstate Crime Commission, made up of attorney-generals and assistant attorney-generals from more than 30 states, on steps of State House today, after they were greeted by Governor Curley. Addressing the members, the Governor said: "I regret that the Legislature (Massachusetts) has failed to adopt your organization's four-point program for the suppression of crime."

([illegible])

Curley Raps Solons For Not Favoring Crime Program

Governor Curley criticized the Massachusetts Legislature today while delivering a welcoming address to the Interstate Crime Commission at the State House.

"Apparently public opinion has not yet crystalized into a moving force," said the governor. "I believe there really isn't as great a necessity for new laws as there is for enforcement of the laws now on the statute books.

"I regret that the Legislature has afiled to adopt your organization's four-point program for the suppression of crime, namely, close pursuit, extradition, return of out-of-state witnesses and supervision of paroled persons.

"The legislature appropriated money for co-operative action by the six New England states in the $100,000 program for tourist trade advertising. There was no hesitancy in passing that legislation, but there was great hesitancy in passing the all-important legislation for the suppression of crime.

"I'm curious to learn if organized crime was more powerful and more potent during the last session of the legislature than was public opinion regarding crime.

"I trust that out of this three-day convention there will result a crystalized public opinion to bring about the legislation needed for the suppression of crime."

Paul G. Kirk, state commissioner of public safety, presented Judge Richard Hartshorne of Newark, N. J., president of the commission, with a check for $750, a portion of the $1,000 appropriation of the legislature. He also deplored the failure of the legislature to adopt the commission's program.

Hubert R. Gallagher, assistant treasurer said: "The work done thus far I believe justifies continued support by the 11 states which have contributed a total of $5000. Thus far we have drafted four statutes which have been a protection for the people of ten states, and we have laid the ground work for similar results in other states."

O'BRIEN PLANS N. E. LEMKE TOUR

by BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Plans for an invasion of the New England states by Representative William Lemke of North Dakota, Union party candidate for President, are being made by former District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, vice-presidential candidate on the same ticket.

O'Brien has returned from a conference in Detroit with Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, and a meeting in Buffalo with leaders of the Union party movement.

O'Brien said that Representative Lemke is due to speak in New Britain and New Haven, Ct., on September 29 and that he is arranging for him to go to Pittsfield the following day to attend a big field day of western Massachusetts supporters.

HAS HOPES

"I hope to persuade the presidential candidate of the Union party to follow up the Pittsfield appearance with a visit to Maine," the former district attorney declared.

"Lewiston would be the place, as we have assurances of a turnout of approximately 40,000 people there."

Mayor Robert Greenwood of Fitchburg, a candidate for the regular Democratic nomination for United States senator in the September primary against Governor Curley, and whose further candidacy as an independent for the same office in the November 3 election is being contested by the Democratic state committee chairman, has opened campaign headquarters at 37½ Beacon street.

It developed that when the mayor went to a local real estate firm to negotiate for a headquarters, he was offered the five-story dwelling house on Beacon street which, he said, happened to be the one in which he had lived as a child when his father, Levi Greenwood, was Republican president of the Massachusetts Senate.

TOOK HOUSE

Greenwood, for sentimental reasons, closed with the offer on the spot and had the house, which had been vacant for several years, cleaned from cellar to roof, three telephones installed and the house elevator put in running condition, all within 48 hours.

Congressman Joseph W. Martin, eastern manager of the Republican national campaign, and Edward A. Hayes of Decatur, Ill., former national commander of the American Legion, will be the principal speakers at a clambake rally in Swansea next Sunday.

The rally is sponsored by Bristol county Republican organizations.

Officer's Son Honor Law Student

For nine and many a strenuous year, Lieut. Louis DiBessa—with nightstick and gun and one of the keenest brains in the Boston police department—has been enforcing the law of the Commonwealth.

Now the time is drawing near when Son Peter DiBessa, a student at Northeastern University Law School, will be admitted to the Massachusetts bar to interpret and define and perhaps, some day, even modify or enact the statutes which it's his father's sworn duty to support.

Young DiBessa goes into the junior class at Northeastern Law School this September. And he goes with an honor grade of [illegible], a grade which puts him on the dean's list.

Law Student Peter's high marks, as you'd maybe guess, are the sort of news that brightens up life for Lieutenant Louis DiBessa, who's now attached to the bureau of criminal investigation at police headquarters.

NATIONAL BLACK LEGION LEADER INDICTED

Detroit, Aug. 21 (AP)—Virgil F. Effinger, of Lima, Ohio, described by prosecuting attorney Duncan C. McCrea as the national head of the Black Legion, was indicted with 21 others today on charges of criminal syndicalism in connection with activities of the hooded order.

The indictments were returned by Circuit Judge James E. Chenot conducting a state grand jury investigation. The indictment, containing two charges, accused Effinger and others with advocating or teaching "crime, sabotage, violence or other forms of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform."

Maximum penalty is 10 years' imprisonment and $5000 fine under the state statute proper. A conspiracy charge included in the indictment carries a prison sentence of five years.

Among those named with Effinger in the indictment were:

Harvey Davis, Black Legion "colonel," charged with murder and kidnaping in the "execution" May 12 of Charles A. Poole, young WPA worker; William Guthrie, Black Legion printer, held on a charge of inciting to riot; Clarence C. Frye, former head of the organization's intelligence squad, held on charges of conspiracy to kill Arthur L. Kingsley, Highland Park publisher, and Roy Hepner, Black Legion "colonel," also held in the Kingsley conspiracy case.

Names of others were withheld until they could be rounded up.

As Judge Chenot handed down his findings, Frederick A. Gulley and Thomas A. Cox, convicted August 7, of "false imprisonment," of Robert Penland, were sentenced in another court to five years imprisonment. They originally had been charged with abduction and flogging Penland, but the charge was reduced by order of the court.

Flowers' Honor Roll of Ten Rich Beauties

ARTIST PICKS 'ELIGIBLES'

New York, Aug. 21 (AP) — Don Flowers, the artist, squinted an eye today at portraits of 100 of America's moneyed maidens and counted off on his fingers the ten he considered most beautiful and also the most eligible "bachelor girls."

Six belong to families which count their wealth in seven and eight figures; one is related to a countess; three are movie actresses who struck it rich in the Hollywood gold mines.

The Flowers selection:

Ethel du Pont of the Wilmington, Del., du Ponts.

Mary Taylor, niece of the Countess Di Frasso, who models and has acted in the movies.

Barbara Field of the Chicago department store Fields.

Greta Garbo, actress.

Mary Brian, actress.

Constance Morrow, daughter of the late Dwight Morrow and sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Gloria Baker, half-sister of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and George Vanderbilt.

Anita Louise, actress.

Virginia French, sister of Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

Betty Slick, daughter of Mrs. Charles F. Urschel, of Oklahoma City, and the late Tom Slick, oil man.

Flowers got a little hesitant toward the end of the list.

"You see," he explained, drawing a sketch of vague, feminine outline in his preoccupation, "I never did this before. Pick beautiful women, I mean. None of my friends did, either, or anyone in my family. It sort of puts a man behind the eight-ball, so to speak.

"They're all equally beautiful. I mean to say, bunch them together, sort of, and let it stand at that. Picking them is dangerous enough in itself.

"Beauty in women is very intangible, you see. It depends on the angle, on the hour, on the circumstances, on the man . . . animation of the features often plays a deciding part in a choice between good looks and sheer beauty."

Wife Shoots At Husband; Escapes Jail

It was all too much for Mrs. Anna Ross, pretty, 22-year-old wife and mother of two infants, and she intended to hit her husband when she fired a 22 caliber rifle at him, Judge Patrick J. Lane was told in East Boston court today.

Nevertheless, the court decided to put the woman on probation after hearing Mrs. Ross and her complaining husband, Lenny, 26.

Lenny, a lobster fisherman, said Mrs. Ross popped a bullet at him Wednesday morning after a family squabble. It missed, and while she was trying to reload, he said, he grabbed the gun.

Mrs. Ross said quite frankly:

"I intended to shoot him, all right. I've been driven to desperation and I'm despondent the way he has been beating me for the last two and a half years since we've been married."

Since Mrs. Ross is the mother of two small children, one 14 months old and the other only six weeks, Judge Lane put the girl on probation for six months. The Rosses live in Border st., East Boston.

RESCUE NEAR 4 ENTOMBED IN MINE

Moberly, Mo., Aug. 21 (AP)—Battling intense heat and the danger of new cave-ins, weary rescue crews today hacked cautiously at the few remaining feet of debris which has imprisoned four men in the depths of the Sexton coal mine for 64 hours.

Frank Bunch, deputy state mine inspector, and relatives still maintained a glimmering hope the four men, entombed Tuesday, would be found alive.

Workers redoubled efforts to make an opening into the two drifts leading from the 100-foot main shaft. Their last obstacles were heavy charred timbers wedged tightly together.

The rescue crews of four men in a shift expected at almost any instant to break through and possibly to be met by a flow of asphyxiation gases. Their sole avenue of escape would be to tumble into the bucket and give the signal to be hoisted.

From a three-quarter level, Arnold Griffith, chief state mine inspector, directed the rescue attempt.

Jewish Mayor Hits Palestine Mandate

Tel Aviv, Palestine, Aug. 21 (AP)—Meier Dizengoff, 75-year-old mayor of the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, charged the British government today with playing a "diabolical game" in handling its mandate over Palestine.

The mayor told Sir Arthur Wauchope, British high commissioner for Palestine, evidence showed the administration was blocking the Jewish National Home, although its establishment was regarded as the cardinal priciple of the Palestine mandate by the League of Nations.

In an open letter Mayor Dizengoff said:

"The attitude and conduct of the Palestine government since the outbreak (of disorders) have introduced demoralization, anarchy and lawlessness into the country and have destroyed laws and the administration's authority as well as civil discipline."

Fisticuffs Barred at State House

The presence of half a dozen State House guards precluded any possibility of repetition of fisticuffs between candidates for political office present at the public hearings before State Ballot Law Commission today.

The strong armed guard was ordered posted as a result of a toe to toe fist fight between James S. Coffey and Alexander Sullivan, both of East Boston, candidates for the Senate.

Both candidates are opposing Senator Joseph A. Langone. The fight started when Coffey accused Sullivan of being a tool of Langone.

Present once more at today's hearing was Governor's Councilor Daniel H. Coakley who heard himself accused of making a million during the last year and of offering $20 to any person who would repudiate their signatures on the nomination papers of Robert E. Dinsmore.

Coakley denied he had made a million saying:

"If I did I would give Dinsmore half of it." He added: "The charge I offered $20 to repudiate signatures is a flat lie."

Masked Thug Slugs Novelist's Wife

Hollywood, Aug. 21 (AP)—Victim of a masked slugger—a character such as might have stepped out of the plot of a mystery story by her husband—Ruby Lorraine, English film player was recovering from bruises and a bad shock today.

The 35-year-old actress, wife of Rupert Grayson, London publisher and author, was sitting in her home last night when a prowler entered with a drawn gun.

She fled to the kitchen, screaming, when he attempted to attack her. Pursuing, he fired a shot which she said grazed her chin and tore into the ceiling.

As neighbors came to the rescue, the man struck her in the face with the pistol barrel and escaped in an auto.

Miss Lorraine is here on a six-months visitor's permit. Her husband is in England.

O'BRIEN ISSUES NEW REVERE DOG EDICT

Mayor James M. O'Brien, of Revere, journeyed home from the American Legion convention in Springfield to issue two orders today as the result of an 18-year-old girl being bitten by two racing greyhounds.

First he delivered an edict that henceforth all racing dogs, out of their kennels, MUST be muzzled, and that none shall be exercised except on private property.

Furthermore, all trainers are required to warn persons away from dogs while the exercise period is in progress. Warning signs to this effect are to be posted.

Secondly, the mayor instructed Chief of Police Edward J. Tighe to prosecute Dr. James A. Austin, the owner of the biting dogs, Red Roll and Rock Roll, for keeping unlicensed dogs and for keeping a vicious dog.

"The animal ought to be shot", the mayor said, apparently about Red Roll, who was involved for the second time in less than a year in an attack on a child.

The mayor was very definite that this time his directions about muzzling and exercising constitute an "order," not a "request."

Similar directions were given last fall after 5-year-old Robert Nelson of Malden was bitten in the same fashion as Sather Lamborghini of Revere was the other night.

DOG CAPTURES PARKED TRUCK

A huge police dog who decided to be boss of a parked truck at Boylston and Tremont streets today, held 10 police officers and a truck driver at bay for more than an hour while they coaxed, urged and cajoled the growling animal to relinquish the truck to its driver.

Finally, a man who knows all the answers when it comes to growling dogs, John McGonagle, of the Animal Rescue League, arrived. He just stepped right into the cab of the truck, grabbed the snarling canine by the lower jaws and hauled him out.

That the New Deal's reciprocal trade agreement has benefitted Czechoslovakia but has been "anything but reciprocal" for the United States was admittedtoday by Ferdinand Veverka, Czechoslovakian minister to this country, when he sailed for home

Veverka has been recalled by his government to serve as a delegate to the League of Nations.

"Most of th nations having this workable agreement with the United States are much satisfied," he said. "Before we signed this pact with Secretary Hull our imports to and exports from the United States were out of proportion. Since the agreement our exports haves hot ahead 40 per cent, while our imports from the United States have been negligible.

"How reciprocal it is for the United States is a doubtful matter but for us it is first-rate."

CAMPBELL ENTERED

Seek Name on Roxbury School

The late Francis A. Campbell, veteran clerk of Suffolk superior civil court, was suggested today as a man whose memory might well be honored by use of his name for Roxbury's new school building, now being completed in Eliot square.

A letter to the Boston Evening American's School Name Ballot Editor read, in part:

"Francis A. Campbell, who died recently, was clerk of Suffolk superior civil court for more than 30 years. A charitable and courageous man. A man who was a real Democrat. Name the new Roxbury school for him, thereby ending all arguments."

Roxbury residents seem to be taking kindly to the suggestion made recently in the Boston Evening American's school name referendum that the Eliot square school building be named for William E. Dawes, who rode, like Paul Revere, to warn Middlesex patriots of the approach of British troops, April 18 and 19, 1775.

A considerable number of Dawes votes were registered today, several of them accompanied by letters, urging the choice of the name, William E. Dawes school.

"Betsy Ross school" ballots are coming in, too, in increasing numbers.

The groups which are supporting the naming of the new school for the late Representative John L. Gleason are still busiest of all the ballot casters.

They seem likely to pile up an impressive referendum majority.

Remaining actively in the running, however, are the two other favorite names, "John Eliot school" and "William L. Phinney school."

You've still a chance to put YOUR choice on record.

Just clip the blank ballot which you'll find in today's Boston Evening American. Mark with an "X" the name for which you wish to vote, if it is among those printed. If you wish to suggest another name, write it on the dotted line provided for the purpose.

Then mail or bring your ballot to the School Name Ballot Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

SPAIN DEFIES POWERS ON BLOCKADE

Kamerun from Cadiz led yesterday to a sharp protest from Berlin, with instructions to the German fleet in the Mediterranean—soon to be increased to 14 ships—to protect all German vessels in Spanish waters.

Word of the Cadiz blockade coincided with an article in the Manchester Guardian saying German and Italian ships in the Mediterranean are in constant radio communication with Rebel ships and Rebel headquarters.

7000 EXECUTED

According to "most reliable information," states the Guardian, two Rebel ships, including the battleship Espana (now off San Sebastian), have been receiving coal at sea from German and Italian vessels.

There is "closest collusion" between German and Italian ships, also, says the newspaper, "indicating positive Italo-German collaboration" in aid of the rebels.

The Guardian claims an "independent check" shows that 7,000 persons have been executed in Madrid alone, including a whole train-load of prisoners arriving from the front.

Standing out most significantly above the collapsing structure of the French non-intervention plan is the preservation of practically every important European power the right of intervention in Spain if circumstances call for such action.

PLEA TO GERMANY

Alarmed by the turn of events following the Kamerun incident, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden telephoned to Baron Von Neurath, German foreign minister, urging Germany not to take strong, precipitate action.

Von Neurath replied, it is understood, that public feeling in Germany demands satisfaction, and necessary military and naval precautions must be taken.

Eden received no more satisfaction in a telephone talk to the Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, who told the Briton that Premier Mussolini cannot further consider the non-intervention declaration until the result of Germany's protest to Madrid is known.

Britain then turned her big guns on Spain, telling the loyalist government that no blockade of the Mediterranean coast or the coast northwest of Gibraltar—location of Cadiz—will be allowed, because of British commitments there.

London refuted the Spanish claim that she had a right to patrol and declare a blockade within the three-mile limit.

U. S. Rejects Plea To Aid Mediation

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP)—Hope for an early termination of hostilities in Spain was coupled today by the United States government with a reaffirmation of determination to remain "scrupulously" aloof from the bitter revolutionary struggle there.

These expressions were set forth in a note dispatched last night by Acting Secretary of State William Phillips to J. Richling, Uruguayan minister to Washington, rejecting Uruguay's proposal that the nations of the Americas join in a move to mediate the Spanish crisis.

Voicing this government's desire to support the principle of conciliation "wherever practicable," Phillips said, nevertheless, it did not feel warranted in departing from its established policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of other nations.

Germany Aroused Over Ship Search by Spain

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP)—Neutrality and non-interference were pushed off the front pages of German newspapers today by expressions of bitter feelings over the reported search of a merchant ship by a Spanish Loyalist warship.

The words "force against force," Nazi warning to Madrid of her stand if new incidents of asserted violation of international law occur, were headlines in many newspapers.

Newspapers also gave attention to armaments of Soviet Russia.

Britain Will Protect Ships From Interference

London, Aug. 21 (AP)—Great Britain, adopting a policy similar to that of Germany, today announced "stern measures" would be taken against any interference with her shipping in Spanish waters.

Authoritative quarters said in the event a British ship was fired upon, it would return three warning shots ahead of the offending craft and then "we shall aim."

The Madrid government, these quarters stated, has been informed that all British ships will be protected from interference, and it was made clear that in the event of untoward action by Spanish vessels, Great Britain will take equally firm steps to safeguard her own craft.

Hitler Gives All Orders For Nazi Fleet Shifts

Berlin, Aug. 21 (INS)—From his home, Reichsfuehrer Adolph Hitler today is personally directing the movements of the German war fleet in Spanish waters or on the way there.

Admiral General Erich Raeder, the Reich naval minister, and other members of the naval general staff, are at his side and the commanders of the two German squadrons, Rear Admiral Rolf Carls, now in the Mediterranean, and Rear Admiral Boehm, en route, were instructed to maintain constant touch with Hitler.

The explosive situation was mitigated somewhat, however, by the official statement today that Madrid has given "complete satisfaction" for the killing of four Germans near Barcelona early in the civil strife. Whether any indemnity was paid was not stated.

Speeding 26 knots following Germany's protest to Spain over the Kamerun affair and Admiral Carls' "force will be met with force" warning, the replacement squadron, led by the flagship, Graf Spee, was believed to have passed through the English channel during the night, and is now racing southward along the French coast.

Ship Search Apology Sought, Paris Hears

Paris, Aug. 21 (AP)—Reports that the French government was bringing pressure to draw an apology from the Madrid regime for the alleged search of a German steamer were circulated today without official confirmation.

The Paris administration, it was said, would insist that Madrid promise there would be no repetition of the incident in which, the official German news agency claimed, the German steamer Kamerun was searched beyond Spanish territorial waters.

While Germany rushed warships to Spanish waters as an outgrowth of the Kamerun affair, French fears increased that Spain's civil war might spread.

Informed persons said they believed France would have to join Great Britain in a joint mediation effort in Spain, as no solid neutrality front had yet come out of France's attempts to localize the Spanish conflict.

The Leftist French press, supporting the popular front government of Premier Leon Blum, displayed antagonism toward Germany in the Spanish crisis.

U. S. Warship Reports Plane Raid on Palma

Copyright, 1936, by International News Service

Aboard U. S. S. Oklahoma, En Route to Barcelona, Aug. 21—Loyalist Spanish airplane bombs zipping through the air and splashing into the waters of Palma Bay, Majorca, within a few yards of the Italian cruiser Fiume, threatening new international complications, were witnessed last night from the stripped decks of the battleship Oklahoma.

The Fiume's anti-aircraft guns were trained on the three government aircraft that dropped 50 bombs on Palma in a 20-minute raid, but the order to fire was never given.

Today the Oklahoma steamed for Barcelona, leaving Majorca in the grip of a terrific battle, with heavy casualties on both sides.

Britain Taking Part in War, George Bernard Shaw Says

Copyright, 1936, International News Service

London, Aug. 21—With the stinging charge that British "neutrality" actually constitutes aid for the Spanish rebels, George Bernard Shaw today emerged from a long period of silence and, in an interview with International News Service, reassumed his traditional role of world critic.

"The Spanish situation is very serious," said G. B. S. as he thoughtfully stroked his white beard.

"Britain has practically gone into the war. It has cut off supplies of arms and airplanes to the government forces at a time when the rebels are getting those supplies from other powers.

"You can't cut off one side from supplies without taking part in the war, and that's just what we've done."

Referring to the possibility of direct intervention by some countries, the Irish playwright said:

"Unless Europe wants to make Spain the scene of a clash between the Communist and Fascist theories, the only thing to do is to stay out and let the Spaniards cut their own throats until somebody comes out on top strong enough to restore order and establish a responsible government.

"It will probably be better for Spain if the Fascists win, providing they can establish a capable government.

"Spain needs a Hitler or a Mussolini. However, nobody has the least idea whether the Rebels intend to establish a military regime or not.

"A military dictatorship in itself isn't very useful—it doesn't last long enough—but this present government in Madrid is a sort of Kerensky government. It claims it isn't Communist; it claims it isn't this, isn't that—in fact, it's nothing."

Asked what he thought the average man in Spain stands to benefit by a rebel or loyalist victory, Shaw answered characteristically:

"There isn't any average man in Spain. Spaniards aren't like other human beings."

Radical Workmen in Paris Oppose Neutrality Plan

Paris, Aug. 21 (INS)—Radical party workmen today made their first gesture of defiance against the neutrality attempts of the French government, backing up with deeds and threatened strikes the repeated statements of their leaders that France cannot remain neutral in the Spanish civil war.

Delegates from all metal factories working for the arms industry met early this morning at the House of Syndicates on the outskirts of Paris in a meeting officially recognized by the labor federation with the announcement:

"Many of our comrades working in the arms industry are complaining of a boycott against the Madrid government.

"The unions are prepared to recognize the situation."

Resolutions at the meeting are a plain indication that the workmen of the arms industry are fully prepared to strike unless the government guarantees that no French arms go to the Spanish rebels.

At the same time a survey revealed that, in spite of new social laws and collective contracts, an average of a dozen new strikes a day are breaking out in France.

The Leftist French government's leanings were once more demonstrated today when Air Minister Pierre Cot authorized employes at the Bloch airplane factory to send two craft already at the Villa-Coublay airdrome to loyalist forces in Spain.

SPAIN REBELS MANUFACTURE GAS BOMBS

London, Aug. 21 (INS)— Vicente Nogueras, a Spaniard who acted as Polish consul in Alicante, Spain, and who disappeared there Monday, has been murdered by Leftists, the Polish legation here was advised today.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press

Madrid, Aug. 21—Manufacture of gas bombs by Spanish rebels at Zaragoza was reported by refugees reaching here today.

Several factories already were turning out the deadly weapon of war, the refugees were quoted as saying in Madrid news agency dispatches.

The northern city where the factories were reported functioning has been held by rebels since the outset of the revolt.

The Socialist government here denied Fascist charges that its troops were using gas of any kind, although a recent Paris dispatch stated that Loyalist troops had used tear gas bombs in driving back a rebel attack.

Vigorous steps to stamp out Fascist sympathies were continued by the government with reports from Loyalist Valencia that a public safety committee had been established there with full power to conduct trial.

The committee announced "It was endowed with full authority by the people and shall be the only court that may judge those implicated in the Fascist movement."

On the battlefront, a new attack on the Mediterranean island of Mallorca was reported with Loyalists claiming a steady advance toward Palma, the capital.

PLAN COURT MARTIAL

At the Catalan capital, Barcelona, preparations were made to court martial 74 military leaders accused of participation in the revolution.

An anti-Fascist committee ordered all civilians possessing arms and not enrolled in the militia to surrender them within 48 hours, under penalty of arrest.

Fighting continued in the Guadarrama mountains outside Madrid with new victories claimed by Colonel Julio Mangada at Navalperal.

Loyalists were reported strengthening positions near Teruel while Catalan columns reported the capture of Caspe, near Zaragoza. Other reports stated that loyalists had surrounded the city of Huesca further north of Zaragoza.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Aug. 21 (AP)—Two trains carrying arms and other war materials, reported to be destined for the Spanish government, arrived today from Mexico City.

The first train was made up of 19 cars and the second 20 cars.

The trains were taken to the Interoceanic terminal, from where they were to be taken to a dock and their cargoes loaded aboard the Spanish steamer Magallanes. The steamer was expected to sail as soon as the arms were on board.

LOOKS TO IRELAND TO DRAFT OWN LAW

Irish common law is now practically English common law, but no one can predict what it will be in the future, Justice Henry Hanna of the High Court of Justice of the Irish Free State told a gathering of legalites in Langdell Hall at Harvard today.

"Under the influence of a strong spirit of nationality and the events, to us unknown, of the next half-century, it is quite possible that the Irish Free State may develop a common law of its own," he declared.

"The common law in every country must gradually accommodate itself to new circumstances and opinions. Views of the nation on certain matters may definitely change, and, almost unconsciously, the judges may interpret the law to correspond with the changes in national views, circumstances and progress."

Justice Hanna's address was the feature of the day's program of the Harvard tercentenary conference on the future of the common law.

TRACES LAW CHANGES

The Irish justice traced from the days of Henry II of England the attempts to replace the native Brehon law of Ireland with the English common law, explaining the political and historical factors that prevented completion of this substitution until recent days.

"The territorial limitation of the common law became very restricted as the wave of Norman aggression (in Ireland) slackened through the successive deaths of Strongbow, FitzStephen and others," he asserted.

"The fact that many native Irish, who had at first been complacent, rejected both English law and English lords, made it clear that only through a complete conquest from England could the English rule be made a success and English common law prevail throughout the land."

INFLUENCE RESTRICTED

Justice Hanna pointed out that as time went on and English influence was practically restricted to the Pale and a few towns outside it, the Brehon laws reasserted themselves and became entangled in the English common law.

"All the inhabitants of Ireland outside the towns were necessarily in contact with the Irish laws and customs," he went on, "and there is ample evidence that the English themselves preferred the Brehon Code in many dealings between themselves.

"The overlapping and entanglement of the two codes gave great opportunity for the unsatisfactory administration of the law and required drastic measures to endeavor to re-establish the English law instead of what has been called "the piebald law."

ONLY ONE LAW

When Edward III of England appointed his son, Lionel, Duke of Clarence, as lord-lieutenant of Ireland and the famed Statute of Kilkenny was forced to passage, England was attempting to recognize only one law—the English Common Law, the justice explained.

"This statute regarded Ireland, not as one Kingdom, but as a country inhabited by the permanently hostile body of people," he declared.

"Lionel's object was to set up a hard and fast line between the two elements in the country, formally recognizing a loyal British Pale under English Law and a hostile people, the "rebel Irish," outside it. It was obviously the law of a weak government afraid of being swamped."

OPEN TO LAW

It was during the 48 years of Queen Elizabeth's reign that Ireland was thrown open to English Law, Justice Hanna pointed out.

"The Brehons and the Brehon Law, having for centuries withstood the coming of the Common Law of England, were swept away and disappeared with their noble patrons. (The Irish chiefs, O'Neill, O'Donnell and others who were killed or fled Ireland.)

"It was a decisive period and became the effectual starting point, for the whole of Ireland, of the administration of justice according to English Common Law."

The Common Law of today in Ireland commences in the courts of the Irish Free State, by the Constitution of 1922, and the Common Law of England, as it existed at that date, was carried over to the Free State in its entirety, Justice Hanna said.

While English Common Law decisions since 1922 are not binding on Irish courts, most of them have been carefully considered, he concluded, but "no one can predict what may be the disposition of the Bench of Irish judges fifty years hence."

No trace of any American prisoner was found.

Nova Scotia "Monster" Captured

Half Island Cove, N. S., Aug. 21 (AP)—A 22-foot fish, believed to be the "monster sea serpent" reported off the Nova Scotia coast several times this month, was the prize of fishermen here today.

Caught in a trap yesterday, the fish was towed in by R. Hendsbee, who estimated it weighed more than four tons.

A veteran seaman said the fish looked like the basking sharks he had seen in foreign waters. It had white flesh and a large mouth, but no teeth.

WOODRING WARNS STATE A. L. TO LEAD ANTI-WAR DRIVE

Springfield, Aug. 21—A warning against pacifists who would destroy preparedness, and false propaganda and unpatriotic ideas which would shake the foundations of our democratic form of government, was issued today before the American Legion state convention by Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring.

He urged the Legionnaires to exert their influence "to guard against the trade of national [illegible]."

Although there is an urgent need for more aircraft, the United States army is now better equipped than it ever was in peace time, Woodring said.

KEEPING WITH PROGRAM

"The present appropriations are in keeping with the program for an efficient army and an adequate navy, and it is to be hoped that when the actual minimum of adequate national defense is reached Congress will continue to maintain it so, in accordance with America's tradition and spirit," he added.

New Bedford won the contest for 1937 convention city in today's session. The vote stood: New Bedford 57 to Fall River 22.

Chairman Thomas H. Carens of the time and place committee reported late in the morning session that the committee had studied late in the morning session that the committee had studied the qualifications of nine cities, found each capable of handling the convention and declined to make a recommendation. A rollcall of the posts followed.

MAIN STREET CLOSED

Main street, in the business district, was ordered closed to motor vehicles at noon for the remainder of the day by Police Chief J. L. Maloney as a precautionary measure and to safeguard pedestrians, who thronged the area, attracted by the convention.

Antics of the legionnaires, to whom full freedom of the city had been granted, attracted an unprecedented throng which overflowed onto the pavements and was endangered by passing vehicles.

Chief Maloney excepted trolley cars and the vehicles used by the Legionnaires from his ruling, with, of course, police and fire apparatus. Several false alarms had drawn much apparatus to the business district, further endangering the public.

PROGRESS SLOW

Trolley cars, though allowed to use the street, made slow progress, since the frolicking Legionnaires perfected the technique of removing the trolleys from the wires, keeping the operators' attention well divided between the two ends of their cars.

The closing will continue until after the parade of the 40 and 8 organization late tonight.

Injunction Delays Rail Spy Probe

Washington, Aug. 21 (INS)—Charging the LaFollette subcommittee, named to investigate alleged violations of civil liberties with conducting an unconstitutional investigation, officials of the railway audit and inspection company, a nation-wide service, today refused to testify in open hearing.

Before the hearing actually got under way Judge Proctor of the District of Columbia Supreme Court issued an order restraining officials of the company from testifying.

The LaFollette subcommittee of the Senate labor committee thus was confronted with a legal battle similar to those waged against the Black lobby committee.

Leonard Weinberg of Baltimore, counsel for the Railway Audit & Inspection company of Philadelphia, asserted that the LaFollette subcommittee exceeded the scope of the Senate resolution authorizing investigation of alleged violation of civil liberties and suppression of collective bargaining.

Stop! Look! Listen! If the driver of this mangled auto had needed these warnings, this crash might have been averted. Lawrence, Aug. 21—Ripping their way out through the rear of their coupe, which had sunk 10 feet in the North Canal following a collision with another machine, a young man and woman were rescued here today.

John McCarthy, 26, single, of Duston road, Andover, and Miss Helen Kelly, 22, of Middlesex street, North Andover, were riding in Canal street, near the edge of the canal, when their car collided with an auto on Union street.

The force of the impact sent the car containing the couple flying ten yards over the edge of the canal into the water. The machine immediately sank.

Battling for their lives beneath the surface, McCarthy ripped open the heavy canvas and pushed Miss Kelly out the rear window. He immediately followed her to the top. Both are expert swimmers.

Edward McKenna, 35, of Ceylon street, Dorchester, a taxi driver, was seriously injured early today when his cab collided with a truck and trailer at Huntington and Massachusetts avenues, near Symphony Hall.

Clevenger Confession Repudiated

Courthouse, Asheville, N. C., Aug. 21 (INS)—Martin Moore, giant Negro, took the witness stand in his own defense today at his trial for the murder of Helen Clevenger, New York University co-ed.

Shortly after going on the stand Moore repudiated his alleged confession to the slaying, asserting he had made the statement only after being beaten and because he "was scairt."

Under examination Moore admitted owning the gun which was shown by the state to have killed the co-ed, but the Negro insisted that he was not in possession of the revolver the night the girl was slain.

Moore asserted he had given the gun to L. D. Roddy, an elevator boy in the hotel. Moore then told how he was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Tom Brown.

"Were you questioned?"

"I was."

"What did they say?"

"Sheriff Laurence Brown said if I confessed he'd talk to the judge."

"Then what did they do?"

"Took me back and started whipping me."

Asked directly if he confessed to Sheriff Brown, Moore said:

"Yes, I told him I did it."

"Was that true or not?"

"No."

"Did you sign any statements?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"'Case I was scairt.'"

Augusta, Me., Aug. 21—Maine's second grade crossing accident in 24 hours brought the toll of dead to five today and sent a young woman, critically injured, to a Waterville hospital.

While the state was still stunned by yesterday's tragedy at Lewiston, where the streaking, stream-lined Flying Yankee snuffed out the lives of four motorists at the Fairground crossing, another train and auto crash in Waterville killed Gerald Duplisea, 25-year-old Augusta Public Works Administration worker, and seriously injured his companion, Miss Elsie Rideout of Lewiston.

DIDN'T SEE TRAIN

The Waterville accident occurred as a motor car carrying two young couples was struck by a locomotive which James Chasson of Augusta, driver of the auto, said he didn't see approaching.

Chasson and his companion, Miss Yvette Marquette of Augusta, escaped serious injury. The other occupants of the machine were Duplisea, who was killed, and Miss Rideout, whose condition is still critical.

Chasson and Miss Marquette said that Miss Rideout was sitting in Duplisea's lap at the time of the crash.

4 FUNERALS TODAY

Sorrowing relatives of the four victims of the Lewiston tragedy were preparing for their funerals today.

Four caskets, two of them white for children, were borne into the home of Eugene Fickett of Park Hill avenue, Auburn.

At the time of the Lewiston crash, railroad officials, WPA representatives and Lewiston officials were gathered to place their signatures on contracts calling for an underpass beneath the death crossing.

The 22-year-old girl whose father allegedly "deeded" her to 77-year-old Charles H. Davis of Roxbury, will marry her white-haired, stoop-shouldered guardian "the very day he steps off the boat from Deer Island," she said today.

The girl is Miss Bertha McLeod of Anita terrace, Roxbury.

Judge Albert F. Hayden of Roxbury district court put her on probation for a year today, after a report from the Boston Psychopathic Hospital had declared her sane but of a mental age of eight years, six months.

Miss McLeod was committed for observation ten days ago. Davis, her 77-year-old "fiance," was given a 30-day jail sentence at the same time.

Man and girl already had filed marriage intentions. Davis told the court Miss McLeod had been put under his protection by her father, who, he said, had given him a "deed" to her.

Today, Miss McLeod told reporters:

To Tenants About The Rising Tide

YOU WILL SAVE MONEY BY RENTING NOW!

It is not an idle prophecy . . . it is not a mere conjecture . . . It is INEVITABLE that RENTALS MUST RISE! The handwriting is on the wall—unmistakably WHY you will have to pay MORE in the immediate future for your new apartment than you are paying at present . . . Because—

1. Apartment house operating costs are increasing steadily!
2. The number of available suites is decreasing every month.
3. It is harder today than it has been in years to find DESIRABLE living quarters.
4. More people are actually going to MOVE this Fall than last . . . which means that there is a good possibility of a SCARCITY of apartments in September.

BUT . . . your decision to acquire your new apartment NOW will mean that you will enjoy that ideal combination we all seek—of low rental and suitable quarters. Prompt action will save you money . . . relieve you of the inconvenience and worry of apartment hunting later . . . when it will be harder to find what you want . . . and leave you free from care!

Washington, Aug. 21 — U.S. National bank deposits aggregated $26,-[illegible],155,000 on June 30, date of the last bank call, thus establishing an all time record, Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor announced.

Bituminous Coal Industry

[illegible] shows the course of [illegible] coal industry [illegible] several important [illegible] factors.

[illegible] output declined [illegible] tons in 1929 to [illegible] tons in 1932. By 1935 it had recovered to 369,000,000 [illegible].

Wage rates for the first four [illegible] were 17 per [illegible] over 33 per cent higher than in [illegible].

The value of bituminous coal production was $713,000,000 in 1935, as compared with $953,000,000 in 1929.

Since 1929 the industry has realized a greater production efficiency through decline in number of man-hours worked in proportion to the output. As a result of this increased efficiency cost of labor is still about 15 per cent below 1929, despite the fact that wage rates in 19[illegible] were 13.1 per cent higher than in 1929.

Since New England textile enterprises entered their pre[illegible] lean earnings a decade or more ago, it has been far from [illegible] common occurrence for stocks of these companies to sell at less than the amount of net current assets per share.

AID TO CREDIT STABILITY

By ALAN H. TEMPLE
Of the National City Bank of New York

The action of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, effective last Saturday, increasing by one-half the percentage of lawful reserves which banks are required to hold against their deposits, is not only a wise and timely precaution against a possible runaway credit expansion in this country, it is undoubtedly an important development in the evolution of central banking practice.

WEEKLY Trade REVIEW

CONSUMER BUYING QUIET

New York, Aug. 21 (AP) — General business activity during this week gave only slight indication of tapering off to the usual August dullness, Dun & Bradstreet said today in its trade review of the week.

"Uneven consumer demand extended the mild curtailment of retail distribution recorded for the week preceding," the agency reported. "Sales of vacation necessities and sporting goods were sustained, but the belated calls for beachwear and luggage found assortments [illegible]

Revived Interest

Record high temperatures in some districts as the heat wave worked its way across the country, reduced distribution at most cities by 5 to 8 per cent for the week. This shortened the estimated increase of retail sales to [illegible] per cent over the corresponding [illegible] taking the country as a whole.

"Eileen, our home is open to you just as long as you want to stay. We like you and we enjoy having you. Perhaps Arthur can find some work for you to do around here."

Mr. Wayland asked if I had anything special in mind to do there and I admitted that I did not.

"If I could get work in one of the stores without their learning who I am, I think I could make good," I said. "Then, if later they learned I am Norma Millen they might keep me on anyway."

"Come on," he said, "we'll work it out. It will all blow over. Live it now and get it over with. Then it will be easier going."

What was Norma Millen's next move in her frantic effort to escape her past, "to run away from Norma Millen"? She tells you in the next installment of her story. It will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Russian Hotels 'All Filled Up' Unless You Have American Money

ARTICLE TWENTY-THREE

By ARNE STROM

About the middle of January our Christmas parcel from faroff Denmark arrived in Moscow. A quite overwhelming duty was demanded, so I decided to go to the capital and fetch it myself. I was also very eager to make the acquaintance of my high superiors there.

Moscow looked wonderful in snow and sunshine, but I had no time to look around. I hurried to the office to ask them to get me a room in a hotel. This, however, seemed quite impossible, though various important gentlemen telephoned to nearly all the hotels. If I had had American dollars, of course, I could have got a splendid room at once for $5.47 a night!

Again I had a chance of noting that only he who has travelled in Russia with roubles has any right at all to give his opinion on the true state of affairs in the Red realm.

Ban Soviet Funds

Everywhere in the bigger hotels there were empty rooms—but for foreign money; with Russian money you had to go to the street or take refuge in the kindness of friends.

A young man in the office of the Trust kindly offered me a share of his room, if I would take it as I found it. He had a wife and a child—and a screen. I accepted gratefully; the word "screen" was reassuring.

Next morning at [illegible] I had an appointment with Mr. Y, the director of the Trust. As soon as we were alone he showed me his hand!

"I am fully aware—hm—that the conditions at Potorino—hm—hm—are not Elysian, but I suppose that by now you will have understood that the same applies to all Soviet Russia."

"Why don't the Russians follow the advice of their foreign experts?" I asked.

"Yes, why? There are many reasons for that, one of the most important being that we have been deprived of all personal initiative and all independence of thought. Everything is done collectively: action, speech and, unfortunately, bit by bit, even thought.

"You have probably heard how we talk and talk and refuse all responsibility and only seek to avoid the rocks as best we can. And further, our organization, being a branch of agriculture, is a stepchild, for our leaders have all got heavy industry on the brain. They make tractors, aeroplanes, motor-cars and thrashing machines, but they can't make spare parts for them at the same time, as you have probably noticed out in the country.

"We have no roads for our motorcars, and soon we shall have only very small crops for our thrashing machines. But we go about a lot in our airplanes for everybody to see what splendid fellows we are.

"Our army is an excellent one, but who on earth believes in armies nowadays? They're only used today to bluff, frighten or punish the ignorant civilian population."

Calm and smiling he talked on.

"Take, for instance, this young fellow Markevitz. What were we to do with him here in Moscow? He is unbearably conceited. Now we hope that he has learned something about poultry farming from you, so we made him undermanager; it's not an enviable position, as you probably know, so it may take him down a peg or two.

"What does annoy me a little occasionally," continued the director-general, looking at me as I sat gravely listening, "is that you seem too deadly earnest about it all. You, as a foreigner, need not mind what happens to us. In the spring you'll certainly be sent home to Denmark, for you have managed to look after yourself as well as any Russian, and, moreover, nobody can touch you.

"I myself shall probably be knocked off my perch soon and end my days in Siberia. I understand, indeed, that to die from cold is a mild and pleasant way of dying. My wife is young and pretty and she has a lot of friends among the Communists, so she'll be all right."

Fears Arrest

He offered me a cigarette and for a while we both smoked in silence. He was the most outspoken Russian I had ever yet come across. A woman came in with two glasses of tea and sugar.

"Yes," he went on, "I expect my arrest almost any day now. I have let myself do many things, which I could, because I know a lot of which people in Soviet Russia know nothing.

"I have travelled in Germany, England and France, and have consequently seen and learned a lot; but as far as scenery goes we have here in our old Russia places to show which can fully compare with the finest scenery I've seen abroad. Now I'll make you a proposal.

"You know your contract allows you a month's holiday when you have worked for us for eleven months. You will probably be dismissed during the eleventh month, but, as far as it rests with me, I will see to it that you don't hear of this till after your return from your holiday—always provided I am not shot or exiled or imprisoned in the meantime," he added with a shrug of his shoulders.

He showed me on the map of the Caucasus where he advised me to go.

"Don't put up at one of these sanatoriums or rest-houses, but go to some place where you can rest from all the propaganda claptrap. There are heaps of starving Greeks down there who will gladly put you and your wife and child in clean rooms in exchange for bread or roubles.

"Go by way of Voronezh, there have your Lesnab papers transferred to Novorossiik. This is very important for otherwise you wi. starve down there; for the Caucasus also belongs to the U. S. S. R.

"In the meantime take life calmly, do your work, even if it seems quite futile and superfluous to you, and don't forget that I have asked you not to leave our beloved Russia without visiting the south."

The journey home went off splendidly. When the three officers discovered that I was a foreign expert, they treated me to caviare, beer, lovely biscuits, real white bread and good cigarettes.

At every station we heard the usual cry of the beggars, "Dyadya daitye hleb" ("Uncle, Give Us Bread") and Comrades G. P. and U. took turns at opening the window and cursing them, while they explained to me together that these people simply would not work and therefore, of course, did not deserve any "hleb" (bread).

'SOAK THE RICH' TAX THREAT

Washington, Aug. 21 (UP)—Practically all large American estates will be broken up in the next 25 to 40 years through the Roosevelt "death duties" and gift taxes enacted in the 1935 "soak the rich" revenue bill, treasury experts predicted.

They based their conclusions on the unexpected yield of the double rates after they have been in effect less than a year.

The new rates, it was revealed, produced 278 million dollars in the fiscal year ended June 30 after a ten months' trial. The treasury had estimated they would return 201 million.

Experts forecast that during the current fiscal year death and gift taxes would return around 300 million dollars, a decided increase over the total estimate of 231 millions submitted to Congress last January by President Roosevelt.

The "death duties" range up to 70 per cent of estates over 50 million dollars, while taxes on gifts are graduated up to 52 per cent on those in excess of 50 millions.

They constitute a major portion of the Roosevelt administration's program to distribute the nation's wealth.

"Death duties" start at 1 per cent on net estates of $10,000 left by Americans who die abroad and begin at the same rate on estates of $50,000 left by residents of this country.

Gift taxes begin at three-fourths of 1 per cent on gifts of $5000 and are designed to prevent the transfer of wealth during the lifetime of the owner.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS—TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Out in front seeking to establish a new record of being the first unit to win the Junior Birdmen wing banner three times in succession is the Flying Hawks Squadron of the John Winthrop School, Dorchester.

This group has no formal meeting in the summer, as the school auditorium is the gathering place for its over 100 members. However, they keep in touch with Birdmen headquarters, each other and with their sponsor, Miss Esther E. Larson, teacher of eighth grade geography, whose home address is 69 [illegible] Street, Dorchester.

Their lead in points shows real activity in [illegible] getting new members, of whom the sponsor's niece, Ruth Larson, is most recent, and attending wing activities.

Following the Flying Hawks in number of points and determined to pass them are these units and their commanders:

Cloud Busters, Roxbury, Leonard Wittenberg; Devil Dogs, Charlestown Navy Yard, Francis Parker; Pine Tree Dare Devils, South Portland, Me., Hugh Caley; Lucky Seven Model Club, Laverna's Falls, Me., "Bob" Burbell, and Lakeville Squadron, Lakeville Sanatorium, Middleboro, Ralph Mitchell.

The Boston wing banner is a large blue satin, gold-fringed standard with lettering and the Junior Birdmen emblem embroidered in red, white and gold. It is mounted on a brass bar. Squadrons which win this honor are very proud to hang the banner in their club rooms or school for the three months' period, during which other groups work hard to take it away from them. It will next be awarded on October 1.

Here are the ways in which units may win points:

LOCAL WING CONTESTS

One point for each member participating. Five points for each first place won in a contest; four points for each second place; three points for each third place; two points for each fourth place; one point for each fifth place and five points for the high point scorer of the contest.

SQUADRON CONTESTS

Squadron conducting contest for own members: Five points for contest and one point for each member participating.

Squadron challenging a rival unit: Five points for contest and one point for each member participating.

Challenged unit will not receive the five points but will receive one point for each member participating.

Other points awarded as follows:

MEMBERSHIP RANK

Three points for each member who becomes an Eagle and five points for each member who becomes an Ace.

MEETINGS

Two points for each meeting held. (Not more than one meeting a week will be counted. Points for meeting will be credited only when minutes are received.)

RECEIPT OF MINUTES

Two points if minutes are received within five days after date of meeting.

NEW MEMBERS

Three points for each new member added.

ATTENDANCE AT ACTIVITIES

One point for each member attending wing meetings, theater parties, airport trips, local Junior Birdmen model plane contests (aside from the official annual local contests and outside contests, etc.)

MARINES HOLD CONVENTION

The Marines have landed!

"Leathernecks" numbering more than 1000 converged upon Boston today to attend the opening of the 13th annual national convention of the Marine Corps League in the roof ballroom of the Parker House.

The convention was called "to attention" by National Commandant John Manning of Methuen. The session lasted for only a short time and then adjourned so members could attend various social functions.

The Theodore Roosevelt Post Attachment of Boston, under the direction of Charles Creaser, commandant, is acting as host to the delegates who come from all parts of the United States.

Tonight the delegates will enjoy a program of entertainment and dancing in the Parker House ballroom and tomorrow the business sessions will get under way.

The convention closes Sunday with a banquet in the afternoon and election of national officers.

They Now Call Spain "Baby Russia"

THE MASK of "Radical Socialism" and "Popular Front" wears thinner every day in Spain, as it does in France.

Back of the semi-Communist government at Madrid now emerges the face of "BABY RUSSIA."

An uncensored dispatch from Madrid says: "'BABY RUSSIA' IS THE OMINOUS SLOGAN OF POWERFUL COMMUNIST ELEMENTS AMONG SPAIN'S GOVERNMENT MILITIA."

On the same day that "Baby Russia" rose to world-view in Spain another dispatch from Paris said:

"FRANCE AND RUSSIA, BOUND IN A MUTUAL DEFENSE PACT, ARE EXCHANGING IDEAS ON WARFARE IN THE AIR."

Can any sane person any longer doubt that the aim of the Radical Socialist party in power in France is to make OF FRANCE ALSO a "BABY RUSSIA"?

And here in our own country there is ceaseless plotting going on to make of this free democratic America a GIANT BROTHER TO RUSSIA.

FOR our people to remain asleep any longer while the "Baby Russias" of Europe grow to full stature is nothing less than A BETRAYAL OF THE COUNTRY—THE LIVING, THE BRAVE DEAD AND THE UNBORN.

The remedy is in our own hands!

VOTE AMERICAN, BE AMERICAN!

Politics in Relief

THE National Civil Service Reform League, remonstrating to President Roosevelt against the requirement of political sponsorship in connection with relief employment, said:

"We deplore making alleviation of human distress the vehicle of political exploitation. We trust that you may use your good offices to prevent such exploitation."

The League's trust is not well placed.

The relationship between relief and politics has been made so fundamental to the New Deal program that Mr. Roosevelt could not effectively sever the tie without inflicting a mortal wound to the New Deal itself.

Mr. Roosevelt, in yielding to the League's demands, would be virtually withdrawing from his campaign for re-election.

His only hope of winning rests upon the tie-up between politics and relief.

If he cannot influence enough people to vote for him, through Federal benefits of various kinds, he CANNOT WIN.

THE Roosevelt Administration has no other ground to stand on in appealing to the nation, except the spending it has done and the spending it still plans to do.

Mr. Roosevelt has been receiving many evidences of the probability that relief billions will not elect him, but the proof is hardly sufficient to suggest abdication to him.

The Nation's Choice

DR. ROSCOE POUND of the Harvard Law School has returned from Europe with the warning that the only alternative to the Constitution of the United States is a dictatorship "as harsh as anything in Europe today."

"If we have outlived the Constitution, we have outlived the United States," is his summation.

These observations have ample confirmation in European events. The Continent's roster of nations includes many whose peoples were once comparatively free to pursue their destinies without oppression, and who have bartered this right for the yoke of dictatorship.

America will avoid this fate by defending constitutional government against assault from any source, particularly against those of our own people who would impose the European pattern upon a free America.

Destroy Hay Fever Cause

RAGWEED, hairy-stemmed, green-flowered plant, is New England's most prolific source of hay fever. On that, medical science and botanists are in agreement.

Goldenrod, beautiful flower of roadsides and meadows, is no longer regarded as Public Enemy Number One by hay fever sufferers. Today the enemy is Ragweed.

Goldenrod pollen, heavy, falls to the ground, does not blow about in the air. But Ragweed pollen, lighter, circulates readily, inflames noses and throats, causing widespread illness, often inducing chronic asthma.

Destroy Ragweed. Pull it up by the roots whenever, wherever you see it. Fight it as the pest it is. Every plant you destroy will be "sneeze" insurance for yourself, your family and the community.

Tornado Time

Tornadoes rise in foreign skies,
Black with impending death,
And none may know where they will blow
Their pestilential breath.

When war clouds loom they spell the doom
Of feeble governments,
And every land on earth must stand
Upon its own defense.

The world enacts its leagues and pacts,
But not a shred remains.
With havoc near, one plan is clear—
More ships. More men. More planes.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 21—Thoughts while strolling: Add minor urges: To muss up Vincent Lopez's hair. Memory: The Sunday school penny tied in the handkerchief end. Another goody-goody song for Bill Field's recovery is in order. The Amos 'n' Andy influence: An Aunt Lillian Cafe. For the Look the Same as They Did 15 Years Ago Club: Will Irwin. Most abused institution in the world today: Modern Business. Nobody can make a cartoon taxpayer look so forlorn as Ding. Latest innovation: Ben DeCasseres going on a word jag.

O. O. McIntyre

Look-alikes: Sir Guy Standing and John Masefield. And Zasu Pitts and Pauline Lord talk alike. Those frisky brightly-lit gown shops where the proprietress is called "Madam." And in the back room always a squawking parrot. Cal Tinney, who writes yokel epigrams with a Will Rogers tang.

Variety's twin [illegible]—Abel Green and Jack Pulaski. Largely responsible for that hilarious lingo. And memorable headlines such as "Rockefellers in Show Biz." What's become of Dorothy Parker's smart cracks! And Bing Crosby's [illegible]. A mild zephyr would blow little Joe Weber away.

Outside of Maud Adams, no actress has maintained that atmosphere of [illegible] and hands-off-ness like Lillian Gish. And not many have the history of spots at their finger tips like Frank Menke. A reader telegraphs the name Oscar means bounding warrior. Pardon my bounce!

A young man I know is reputedly the most miserable of young fellows. The picture of health, popular with everybody and with a yacht on which he always carries a trained nurse, country estates and a monthly income a whippet could not hurdle, he is among friends an arch apostle of gloom.

Every month or so he lugs with a new and depressing malady—sometimes approaching appendicitis, arthritis or some sort of malady even more hideous. He goes to parties and tries to enter into the spirit of whoopee but more often is dropping in a corner feeling his pulse or trying to detect fever across his brow.

Like all so bedeviled, he has his moments of realizing they are foolish fears, but in a day or so slips back into the fog.

Temperamental people, even though in splendid physical condition, are reputedly the most easily netted for hypochondria. Whistler had his variety of pet ailments that never materialized. So did Kipling. Frank Sullivan has them, and the same fears have made James M. Barrie practically a recluse. There is comfort for those tortured in statistics which showed they so often outlive most of their fellows—still hunting a new affliction for the last lap.

"Hypos," the medicos call them, and they are an inexhaustible source of revenue for high tariffed Vandyked specialists of the fashionable boulevards. For the "hypo" is never satisfied with a verdict, especially if it is a bill of health, and so he goes from one to another at sometimes $50 a visit.

Stage stars, too, are among the highly taut in constant shrink from some affliction they rarely suffer. Al Jolson is one. Throat specialists thrive on singers, etc. An old French doctor who lived with me in Paris once remarked on the subject: "Hypochondria has one root—self-indulgence. The laborer who has to get up at daylight and work until dark never suffers from it."

Joe Rosenbaum, young grain operator, has a trigger-minded chauffeur, who deserves whatever medals they are passing out—if any—for trigger thinking. He's a young Frenchman named Leon and one night some time ago was driving his employer home from Philadelphia. On a lonely stretch of the road, the car was stopped and two stick-up men flashing pistols jumped on the running board. Said the chauffeur:

"Listen, fellows, this puts me in a tough spot. I took this car out tonight without the boss' permission for a little drive. That's my brother-in-law in the back, out of a job and discouraged. I just wanted to cheer him up. We haven't a buck between us. If I get caught at this I lose my job and I've a wife and four kids."

The thugs motioned him on with "O. K. Buddy." Rosenbaum was wearing several valuable pieces of jewelry and carried a whopping roll of bills.

A police lieutenant tells me that in case of hold-up a good dodge is to talk goofy as though you were a nut. And a certain lady to whom I relayed the advice observed: "For you that will not be a strain."

'Dear Gov't.'

By Winston Norman

Mr. Ickes, SLUM EXPERT,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Ickes:

I am a Radio Fan of yours. I and my wife Mabel always tunes in on your speeches unless Gracie Allen is on the air the same night. Well, Mr. Ickes, I am also a Democrat like you, and I want to help you get votes for Mr. Roosevelt.

So I got an idea. I figger you could get a lot of votes by tellin the Radio Fans what you done for my Cousin Ned when you built that new Slum Clerance Project for the poor folks.

Cousin Ned dropt in to see us last night, and Mabel says, "How is Hilda and the children?" she says. "Are you still liveing in that awful Slum you was liveing in?"

"Oh no," says Cousin Ned, real happy. "Mr. Ickes has tore our Slum down. Him and the PWA built a wonderfil Govt Apartment House where our slum use to be."

"That is very nice," says Mabel, "tell me all about it."

"Well," says Cousin Ned, "it is so wonderfil you wouldn't even believe it. Mr. Ickes blowed 3 Million dolars on the job. He put in nice garrages for poor folks that don't have no car. He put in big, shiny Bathtubs like you see in the Movies, and the whole thing is Air-condition, includeing the Garbige Can."

"Good gracious, that is lovly," says my wife, "Tell me about the kitchins."

Cousin Ned says that your kitchins was a dream, Mr. Ickes. He says you put in shiny Alectric Stoves, and you do your laundry in a Modren Alectric Washtub with a fan to cool you off.

Mabel's eyes was fairly bulging out, she says, "My goodness, Ned, you and Hilda sure is lucky to be liveing there."

"Oh," says Cousin Ned, "we are not living there. The Govt rent is too high. Mr. Ickes spent so much money dolling it up, that he has to charge double the Rent we use to pay. So only Rich Folks can live in his projeck, and us Poor Folks has moved to a worse Slum than before."

But Cousin Ned is very hapy, Mr. Ickes. He sees where your Model Projeck is a nice place for rich folks, if they can afford the rent. And as for the Poor Folks like Cousin Ned, they are liveing in a worse Slum than ever, but they have the fun of moveing around.

Your friend
W. NORMAN

"Living on Wheels" Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

The "Architectural Record" prints an impressive story, with photographs and drawings, of the "two-story mobile house" designed by Corwin Willson, of Flint, Mich. Simultaneously, it is announced that a motor corporation will start large-scale production of automobile trailers within a few weeks.

Edwin C. Hill

In his book "Living on Wheels," still to be published, Mr. Willson, a technician and designer, rates "economic mobility" as a prime factor of adaptation under changing economic conditions, and if this particular technical millenium works out we'll all travel light and we'll always be ready for a quick dash to the rainbow's end. Mobility, Mr. Willson believes, is going to be the test of economic survival in the future.

His new traveling house is a two-story affair, with a side elevator like an [illegible] beetle. It is 25 feet long and seven feet wide at the wheelbase, with an additional one-foot bulge at the sides. It has six feet, four inches of headroom on the first floor and six feet on the second floor.

A MINIATURE HOME

The first floor has a main cabin, bath, toilet and laundry, built-in seat or bed, sliding shelf, space for radio or books, smoking and magazine stands, cabinets, desks, easy chairs of tubular lightweight alloy with sponge rubber cushions, wrap closet, dresser and cupboards, drop-leaf dining table to seat seven persons, dining chairs, dresser, sink, refrigerator, three-burner cooking stove, hot air grill, hot water storage tank, electric washer, twin laundry trays and a five-foot bathtub.

The second floor houses two cabins and a dressing room. It is reached by a ship's ladder, with plenty of headroom. It includes a dresser, closets, beds, tank for fuel oil, space for a child's bed and a chest of drawers, lavatory, cupboard, compressed air storage tank and water storage tank. A unique feature is a "utilities coupling," by which "five utility services—electricity, water, telephone, gas, sewage disposal—are quickly and easily made available through this coupling."

The construction is of hardwood and steel, and experiments are being made with a lightweight plastic material and weather-facing of glass-fiber textile. And, with all these fixings, there's space in which to tuck in an inside engine, if you don't want to be dependent on ordinary automobile traction. This added fixture will fit you out with what is really a "two-story mobile house." Otherwise, you have a de luxe and Gargantuan trailer.

THE TRAILER STORY

The importance of the automobile in "economic mobility" already has been abundantly demonstrated. The history of the trailer, and what it may mean in vast human shifts and adjustments, is just now opening up. The annual production of trailers is now around 25,000. It is estimated that the immediate demand will be for about 200,000 when the new scientific design is employed.

America is uniquely adapted for "house on wheels"—more so than any country. A family could make a "pitch" on a Vermont mountainside in the summer and roll down to Florida in the fall. Engineers tell me that, so far as mechanical details are concerned, it is easily possible to make a traveling house which can be heated and air-conditioned and provide every detail of comfort and convenience for far less than an ordinary house.

Students of the human side of the news haven't begun to plumb the change which cheap motive power is bringing about in mass conditioning and behavior.

Probably adaptability and mobility are just as important in human survival as they are with the bugs and the lower vertebrates. This ambulating house thing is worth watching.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

This time it's Dad. Fifty-four and badly worried. All three children—Bill, 31; Ed, 28; Alice, 25—have been married, and each marriage has ended in divorce. WHY?

Elsie Robinson

He and mother have stuck together 32 years now, ever since he was 22 and she 18. Seen some tough times—poverty, heartbreak—two of the babies died—the bank folded, left Dad flat. Mother didn't have a new dress for four years.

Squabble? Of course they did. Who doesn't? But divorce—it never entered their minds. Dad can't imagine life without Hattie waiting for him when he comes home at night.

And they did their best to bring the youngsters up the same way. Yet look at them now! Even little Alice, sweet a girl as you'd want to see. Smart, too; made a wonderful record in school and the two years she worked in an office. Then she fell head over heels in love with Harry. Nice boy, Harry. Good job and crazy about her—yet, for some reason, it didn't work.

Hurts Dad to admit it—but he can't help thinking it's mostly the fault of the girls. Take Alice—and the boys' wives were the same—hadn't been married six months before she was restless, wanted to go back to the office. Crazy notion—they all laughed her out of that. But it didn't help any. She kept getting more discontented. Couldn't seem to settle down. Began having crying fits . . . getting mad at the least little thing . . . packing up and running home.

MARRIAGE SUFFERS

So now it's ended. Harry's heartbroken and Dad's bewildered. What on earth ails these modern youngsters, particularly the girls? Why can't they settle down and be contented, the way his Hattie did? Maybe times have changed, but isn't marriage the same?

No, it isn't, Dad. Marriage has been harder hit, deeper dented by the coming of the Machine Age than any other institution.

For the Machine Age gave women jobs . . . and jobs gave women excitement . . . and once having known excitement, it's almost impossible for the modern girl to Stay Put in the monotonous round of matrimony.

WOMEN CRAVE CHANGE . . . LOVE RISK . . . ARE, NATURALLY, THE EXCITEMENT SEX.

Those facts the average man will indignantly reject and deny, fondly imagining that the Dear Little Woman is timid and simply dotes on hugging the fireside. Would HE himself like such a program . . . be contented with such loneliness and monotony? Silly question—of course he wouldn't! But "HE'S different . . . HE'S a man . . . men weren't made to stick in a house."

Neither were women, Brother. Far be it from me to defend nit-wit females who make life miserable for themselves and everyone else by their mad search for something new. Still—the truth is the truth, and a little dose of it is badly needed for what ails you. So, I repeat, you'd better face the fact that women weren't meant to "stick in the house" any more than men, and they don't appreciate the situation any better.

No female from Mother Eve on has ever relished "staying put." Least of all the modern girl whom we expect to exchange the thrills, freedom and fine feathers of business life for the lonely, simple life of a furnished room and kitchenette. For a few fevered weeks the bright delirium lasts. Then she begins to wonder—begins to fret.

Today's Text: "Turn Thou us unto Thee, O Lord, and we shall be moved."—Lamentations 5:21.
